Sponsored by
Sacramento Collaborative Practice Group

This training, offered for the twenty-first time, is designed for attorneys, mental health and financial professionals. Trainees will develop advanced professional skills to become part of an interdisciplinary team providing divorcing couples with a collaborative divorce process. You will learn what each team professional contributes to the process and how each professional's role integrates with the process. We will review the collaborative divorce process and written materials associated with this client-centered practice.

At the conclusion of this two-day training, you will be able to:

- Define the roles and functions of the professionals on the team.
- Discuss three difficult client situations and strategies used to intervene successfully.
- Identify the hallmarks of a collaborative divorce process that differ from other divorce options.
- Describe two elements of the paradigm shift.
- Discuss ways in which the coach can assist the couple to improve communication and honor each party's interests.
- Differentiate the unique role of child specialist as a neutral and how this is used to assist parents and children during this time of family transition.
- Work as a team of professionals with your clients as they navigate the dissolution process and restructure their family.
- Name two situations in which collaborative divorce is not appropriate.

This training will introduce you to the practices and skills needed to implement a collaborative practice. You will have the opportunity to meet and discuss these theories and processes with other professionals interested in working collaboratively. This two-day course meets the minimum training standards set by the International Academy of Collaborative Professionals (IACP). Lunch is included for both days, with morning and afternoon refreshments.

Course completion certificates will be awarded at the end of the course in exchange for a completed evaluation form.
