CP CAL "TO GO"

In a world where "VIRTUAL" has become our new normal, why should this year's CP CAL Celebration be any different? On-line, hopefully for the last time, from Friday, April 22nd to Saturday, April 23rd, 2022, CP CAL is serving up a menu of options to fill up our educational, social and collaborative palettes! Click on the link below to register for the conference, or check your inbox for an email sent Thursday, March 31st "CP Cal Celebration XVI" to access the weekend's buffet of opportunities to learn and celebrate with other collaborative professionals.

This year's Celebration is very AFFORDABLE and a new platform promises to make it easier and even more interactive than before!

Dynamic Plenary Speakers:

Friday afternoon plenary features Jarrett Green sharing tips for Defeating Covid Fatigue: How to Maximize Your Well-Being and Thriving Two Years Into the Pandemic. We've all endured the widespread experiences of frustration, languishing and demotivation due to the ongoing pandemic. This plenary will present information about the neuroscientific reasons for these emotions. Participants will learn practical science-based techniques for transforming their internal experience towards greater well-being, energy, passion, and overall thriving through the remainder of the pandemic and beyond.

Saturday's lunch hour features Ellen Bruno of "Split" fame. She will be debuting the long awaited and highly anticipated film "Split UP: The TEEN Years". For those of us who saw the outtakes a couple of years ago, you know how powerful this film will be. Ellen captures interviews of articulate and insightful teens as they express experiences, observations and emotions they experienced during their parents' divorce.

2 Days of Interactive and Skill-Building Workshops:

Workshops # 1 through #12 provide the main ingredients for the collaborative, settlement negotiation, coaching, financial, team collaboration and high conflict skills that we have been craving.

Premier Networking:

Collaborative Practice on zoom creates teams that can be made and cultivated based on affinity, expertise and unique experience, all of which will benefit the families we work with. Expand your practice by not being limited to the old school notion of in-person meetings. Taking classes together creates common language and growing trust. These connections are always the strongest basis for referrals and team formation.

Opportunities to Socialize and Celebrate with Other Collaborative Professionals:

Friday Night Dine Around Is Here Again! No need to sign up in advance. The platform will offer many rooms and activities to choose from. The rooms may fill up and space may be limited, so join early to get a spot and enjoy the activity.

Saturday Social: Gather with us at 4:00 p.m. for Eureka Awards, appetizing updates and an engaging and interactive group experience!

Local in Person Sunday Social: Check with a practice group near you to see what in-person activities may be scheduled.

From the PEC:

Making an Investment in Collaborative

All businesses must invest in future growth...because it's very true that if you stop growing, you start to die. Collaborative practice does require that investment, in both time and money...and perhaps more of an investment than the rest of your practice. Of course, CP is also a lot more satisfying and fun the rest of your practice. Of course, CP is also a lot more satisfying and fun than many of our professional experiences. Still, there has to be a balance and some wisdom attached to how you spend your time and money on building your Collaborative practice. Questions to ask: will this investment in time or money get me more Collaborative clients? Will it feed my soul? Will it train me to be better at my job whether in Collaborative or not?

Professionals who make the Celebration a yearly event will tell you that it checks off ALL the boxes. Plus it's...fun! Let's cross our fingers that this will be the last virtual event and be grateful that we still get to be hanging out with the Collaborative community of smart, wise, funny and friendly professionals even if it's in teeny squares on the screen.
